【1】 次の文を読んで問いに答えなさい。

The dream of almost all athletes is to *compete in the Olympic Games. Over the last century, many sports were added to and removed ( ① ) the Olympic Games. Some sports, like *rope climbing and *tug-of-war, were soon removed, but in the history of the modern Olympic Games, maybe the most interesting event was the 1904 marathon.

The 1904 Olympic Games were *held in St. Louis, America. The marathon was held on August 30 and started ( ② ) 3:03 pm. The course ran over *unpaved roads, with 7 hills. There was only one water station on the course, around 18 kilometers into the race. On the day of the race, the temperature was 33°C and very *humid.

Thirty-two athletes entered the race. Two of the racers were the first black athletes to enter the modern Olympic Games, Len Tau and Yamasani from South Africa. Felix Carbajal, a mailman from Cuba, arrived at the start line in a long sleeve shirt, long black pants and street shoes. ③ He had to walk and *hitchhike his way from New Orleans to St. Louis, over 1000km, because he lost all his money when he arrived in America. When one of the American athletes saw his long pants, the American ④ ( feel ) sorry for him and found a pair of scissors to cut them off at the knees.

When the race began, the athletes ran out of the stadium and onto a dirt road. Race officials and support cars drove in front ( ⑤ ) the athletes causing large dust clouds. Unlike modern marathons, roads were not closed for the athletes. They had to *dodge regular traffic, railroad trains, street cars and people walking their dogs.

⑥ ( more / half of / during / retired / the race / the athletes / than ). William Garcia, an American athlete, fell down on the side of the road. He breathed in too much dust and would have died if he were found one hour later. John Lordon began *vomiting and had to quit. Sam Mellor was first for the start of the race but began to have very bad *cramps and quit. Len Tau finished the race in ninth place, but during the race he was chased 1.5km off course by wild dogs. ( ⑦ ) he had no money, Felix Carbajal did not eat for 40 hours before the race. During the race he stopped at a farm to eat some apples. Unfortunately the apples were bad and he became sick. He *lay down and took a nap, but finished in fourth place.

The first person to cross the finish line was the American Fred Lorz. Everyone cheered for Lorz as he entered the stadium and crossed the finish line. Just before he was ⑧ ( give ) the gold medal, people said that he *cheated. Lorz had bad cramps after around 15km and rode in a car for the next 18km. As he rode in the car, he waved to the audience and other athletes. Lorz said that it was all a joke.

The real winner of the race was Thomas Hicks. During the race he was so thirsty he *begged the support car for something to drink, but they refused and instead gave him a dangerous drug. Hicks slowly began ( ⑨ ) run slower and looked sick. When he ⑩ ( hear ) that Lorz was not the winner, he began ( ⑨ ) run faster, but he soon started *hallucinating, thinking that the finish line was still 30km away. His support car gave him more drugs, alcohol, and some egg whites. During the last 3km Hicks begged to lie down and sleep, but the support car refused. When he entered the stadium he could not walk, and his supporters had to carry him across the finish line.

Four doctors treated Hicks for one hour before he could leave the stadium. Over the race he lost 3.5kg. In the end, of the thirty-two athletes who entered the race, only fourteen finished. All of the athletes *suffered terribly, and in the end, the “marathon” was only 39.99km long, not even the length of a full marathon.
